PATH Campaign 2: PATH Advisory Committee
CSAP Strategy:	Community Based Process

CHC understands that engaging youth and adult professionals in AOD prevention efforts increases the level of possible reach with program campaigns and provides access to expertise or perspectives that can support further development and improvement of the program's efforts and design.

By involving professionals from different community sectors as part of the countywide AOD Prevention Advisory Board (AB), the program will engage professionals with expertise in areas that program staff may lack. Also, in order to have youth voice and engagement in AOD prevention efforts, the program will recruit / nominate youth to form part of a countywide Youth Advisory Board (YAB). Members of the AB and YAB will be trained and engaged in AOD prevention efforts throughout the county and for the duration of the contract term.

Target Population:

- ✓ Youth
- ✓ Law Enforcement
- ✓ Media
- ✓ Treatment Professionals

PATH Campaign 3: I Perform Above the High (iPATH) Environmental Approach, Alternative Activities,

Background/Overview and rationale for selection:

The I Perform Above the High (iPATH) Campaign is designed to train Fresno County Youth to serve as community youth advocates on local Youth Advisory Boards (YAB), with the purpose of providing youth a voice in marijuana prevention efforts and directly involving them in changing social norms in their communities. YAB participants are trained in topics such as advocacy, policy change, public speaking, community needs assessments, and marijuana prevention.

Annually, the iPATH campaign will also recruit youth and young adults countywide to participate in an annual gathering known as the Youth Empowerment Summit (YES). The YES will provide youth with an opportunity to create an annual countywide campaign which is then implemented by local YABs in their own communities. Examples of campaigns include media campaigns, policy/systems change efforts, and other sustainable forms of marijuana prevention activities.

- Recruit 6 youth and/or young adults to participate as YES Peer Leaders to design and implement the activities of the YES and provide a stipend for their participation.

PATH Campaign 4: YouthPATH
CSAP Strategy:	Information Dissemination

The Youth Performing Above the High (YouthPATH) campaign enables PATH Project staff to reach thousands of youth countywide with education and awareness information about the health, developmental, and safety consequences of marijuana use in adolescence, as well as information on positive youth development activities. With the use of a customized mobile vehicle, already owned and operated by the PATH Project, this campaign provides a moving billboard for marijuana prevention messaging through an external wrap of the vehicle and internal display of public service announcements which deglamorize substance use and abuse. Additionally, this campaign provides interactive informational booths, in locations where the mobile unit cannot be utilized, all with the intent of attracting youth and educating them on the consequences of marijuana use.

As an added component of this campaign, PATH will train and monitor youth to disseminate marijuana prevention education through social media pages including Facebook, Instagram, Twitter, and YouTube. These pages will be promoted at community events in order to build a captive audience for marijuana prevention information dissemination.

Target Population:

- ✓ Middle School Students

PATH Campaign 6: Parent-Child Communication Workshops

CSAP Strategy:

Community Based Process, Information Dissemination

Background/Overview and rationale for selection:

Parent-Child communication in early adolescence is increasingly important in substance use prevention. A positive parent-child relationship which allows for open communication regarding cannabis can support youth in making healthy decisions by understanding the consequences of early and problematic cannabis use. Parents lack resources to support their understanding of cannabis related consequences in adolescence, as well as strategies to improve a parent's ability to engage in healthy communication with their child.

Parent-Child Communication Workshops or Activities – The proposed program is the Reality Tour program, a substance use prevention program based in evidence and research designed to increase communication between parent and child by engaging in an interactive walk through the life and death of a child who abuses substances. If the Reality Tour program is not a feasible option due to concerns on large gatherings, the PATH Project will implement parent-child communication workshops for parents via online platforms or in small groups in order to ensure parents are engaged in learning and implementing strategies to improve their communication with their children.

Target Population:

- ✓ Elementary School Students
- ✓ Middle School Students
- ✓ High School Students
- ✓ College Students
- ✓ Parents
- ✓ Law Enforcement
- ✓ Community

	PATH Campaign 7: PATH&Law
CSAP Strategy:		Community Based Process
Background/Overview and rationale for selection: The Performing Above the High & Law Enforcement (PATH&LAW) Campaign is designed to establish and foster relationships with local law enforcement agencies. By bridging the gap between enforcement of marijuana possession/use agencies and marijuana prevention agencies. It is anticipated that solutions will evolve that address the enforcement, or lack thereof, of marijuana use/possession laws in Fresno County. Law Enforcement partners will be invited to participate in the Advisory Committee and will work with project staff to provide technical assistance and training to Youth Advisory Board members in support of their advocacy efforts.
Target Population:		Scope of Work Activities and Timelines

Cultural Competency

Establishing cultural competence in community prevention services for substance abuse requires the development of strategies, practices and infrastructure development among the lead agency and in partnership with community-based institutions and groups that will enable effective design, implementation and evaluation of the program model. Therefore, CHC will address cultural competency needs in program design and staffing determinations.

CHC's plan allows the PATH Project to accomplish three goals:

- 1 The assessment and review of the target population, prevention program model, materials and educational resources that demonstrates a project and its operations that is reflective of the diversity of the community it serves.
- 2. Create opportunities for community leaders and stakeholders to partner and advance the agenda for prevention services that meet the needs of a diverse target population in the County
- 3. Increase the quality of services provided to youth and their families accessing a program that has a culturally and linguistically competent model.

Furthermore, CHC will develop and complete a local needs assessments including surveys and focus groups with members of the target population, community leaders and providers of health and human services to design a prevention partnership model that will focus on the following elements:

- Identify and establish opportunities for defined collaboration to assist targeted populations of culturally diverse youth and families with multiple needs for resources and referral. This strategy is designed to address and minimize environmental factors that may place youth and families at risk for problems associated with marijuana use.
- Design strategies to improve the scope and quality of marketing and outreach to diverse cultural groups as an integral part of the implementation of the prevention service model. The marketing strategy will be reflective of the diversity of the cultures served by our program in the targeted communities of Fresno County.

Cultural Competency

Establishing cultural competence in community prevention services for substance abuse requires the development of strategies, practices and infrastructure development among the lead agency and in partnership with community based institutions and groups that will enable effective design, implementation and evaluation of the program model. Therefore, CHC will address cultural competency needs in program design and staffing determinations.

CHC's plan allows the LIUP Project to accomplish three goals:

- 1 The assessment and review of the target population, prevention program model, materials and educational resources that demonstrates a project and its operations that is reflective of the diversity of the community it serves.
- 2. Create opportunities for community leaders and stakeholders to partner and advance the agenda for prevention services that meet the needs of a diverse target population in the County
- 3. Increase the quality of services provided to youth and their families accessing a program that has a culturally and linguistically competent model.

Furthermore, CHC will develop and complete a local needs assessments including surveys and focus groups with members of the target population, community leaders and providers of health and human services to design a prevention partnership model that will focus on the following elements:

- Identify and establish opportunities for defined collaboration to assist targeted populations of culturally diverse youth and families with multiple needs for resources and referral. This strategy is designed to address and minimize environmental factors that may place youth and families at risk for problems associated with marijuana use.
- Design strategies to improve the scope and quality of marketing and outreach to diverse cultural groups as an integral part of the implementation of the prevention service model. The marketing strategy will be reflective of the diversity of the cultures served by our program in the targeted communities of Fresno County.
- Develop short and long term strategies for capacity building in the community that will achieve sustainability of the prevention program at a level commensurate with existing and future resources.
